Page 4. .... Amt VI, under Brigf. SCHELLENBERG has shown growing tendencies to develop into a new Intelligence Service distinct from the SD proper - tendencies which have been further accentuated since SCHELLENBERG took over the remnants of Abwehr I and II in the summer of 1944. We may expect this development to advance still further as the war in Europe approaches its conclusion. Ohlendorf and Mueller will no doubt concentrate more and more on the repression of opposition inside Germany; while SCHELLENBERG may thus gain a yet more undisputed control of all secret intelligence work directed beyond the frontiers of that area of Germany still occupied by the German armies.
